Blue of Noon (French: Le Bleu du Ciel) is an erotic novella by Georges Bataille. Although Bataille completed the work in 1935, it was not published until Jean-Jacques Pauvert did so in 1957. (Pauvert previously published the writings of the Marquis de Sade .) Urizen Books published Harry Mathews ' English-language translation in 1978.

Blue of Noon - Wikipedia

Death is central to Bataille's Blue of Noon; death permeates every action. Death is erotic, death is unavoidable, and death is overtly human. Tensely positioned before the outbreak of war in Europe, this novel explores the depravity, cowardice, and amorality of a world which seems to be unable to exist with itself.

Georges Bataille's 1935 novel The Blue of Noon is inundated with literal and metaphorical descriptions of corpses, which are used to convey the narrator's self-ravaging tides of fear and desire. Simultaneously, the novel is interjected with strangely removed (despite the narrator's physical proximity) observations of the political events leading up to World War II.
